Based on the current news via Thomson Reuters “700 new regional journals in the world have been added to Web of Science since 2007”, we conducted an investigation to find out that 43 (6.1%) Chinese journals (including 6 journals from Hong Kong region) are included. The results also show that up to now a total of about 153 Chinese journals (114 from China Mainland, 11 from Hong Kong and 28 from Taiwan) have been included by SCI and SSCI & AHCI.

On May 27, 2008 the Scientific Business of Thomson Reuters launched the expansion of journal coverage in Web of Science by adding 700 regional journals from all over the world (<http://scientific.thomsonreuters.com/press/2008>). Meantime, ScienceNet.cn also reported this news (<http://www.sciencenet.cn/htmlnews/2008/6/207606.html>). The number of journals added by region and subject area is included in Table 1.

Table 1 shows that the newly added 700 regional journals are mainly from Europe (364, 52%) and Asia-Pacific (199, 28.4%), and mostly about Social and Behavioral Science (161, 23%), Chemistry (148, 21.1%), and Agriculture Biology & Environmental Sciences (108, 15.4%).

Among those 700 regional journals, how many are from China? We searched through three major journal lists (<http://scientific.thomsonreuters.com/mjl/>, 2008-06-15), including Science Citation Index Expanded (SCI-E) (7454 journal), Social Sciences Citation Index (SSCI) (2239 journals) and Arts & Humanities Citation Index (AHCI) (1228 journals). We selected journals with titles of “Chin” or “Univ”

*Data were collected from PR & Communications, Thomson Scientific on June 6, 2008

Subject areas include: A&H: Arts and Humanities; AB&ES: Agriculture Biology & Environmental Sciences; CM: Chemistry; EC&T: Engineering, Computing & Technology; LS: Life Sciences; PC&ES: Physics, Chemistry, and Earth Sciences; S&BS: Social and Behavioral Science

Regions include: AP: Asia Pacific; EU: Europe; LA: Latin America; MA: Middle East and Africa; NA: North America

and publishing places of “Chin”, “Springer”, “Blackwell” or “Elsevier”, etc. Eliminated were those that had been indexed in 2007 China Sci-Tech Journals Citation Report of ISTIC (the Institute for Scientific Information in China) (<http://www.istic.ac.cn/>, 2008-06-05). We then compared the journals that made our list with those offered by Prof. Zhu Cheng (<http://www.cujis.com/newversion/Upload/Attach/Ne> ws/20080604162558.xls, 2008-06-05), and checked and verified the result from Web of Science by publishing year, and finally obtained the updated list of Chinese Journals indexed by SCI since 2007 (Tables 2 and 3). Table 2 shows that 6.1% of the newly included journals (43 of 700) are from China (including 6 journals from Hong Kong). Nos. 1~38 journals are indexed by SCI, and the remaining 5 by SSCI & AHCI. Among the 43 journals, 4 are university journals and 11 the Chinese Academy of Sciences (CAS) journals, and the remaining are from some academic associations, institutes, etc. Up to now, a total of about 153 Chinese journals (114 from China Mainland, 11 from Hong Kong and 28 from Taiwan, Table 3) have been included by SCI and SSCI & AHCI. Table 3 shows that 140 journals are indexed by SCI (111 from China Mainland) and 14 are indexed by SSCI & AHCI (Transportmetrica is indexed by SCI and SSCI) (3 from China Mainland).
