Chapter Twelve— Managing in the Knowledge Society

Thirty-one years ago Drucker coined the terms knowledge society and knowledge worker, introducing these insights in his 1968 work, The Age of Discontinuity. ¹ In the interim the phenomenon of knowledge in contemporary society has been one of his central concerns. Specifically, in demonstrating the interaction between knowledge and society, he probed such topics as the role of technology, social impacts, and knowledge characteristics, which all were major forces in shaping the new educational environment in the United States—the world's first broad-based knowledge society.

Locating and Searching for eBooks There are several ways to locate specific eBooks in a netLibrary collection.

Keyword Search lets you search by Keyword from the netLibrary navigation bar. Enter your search information in the search box displayed at the top of the screen and click go.

Search Tools Tab is the center of your advanced search options. Search Tools include:

- Advanced Search lets you search by title, author, subject, or other criteria.
- Command Search lets you create a free-form search query to locate books.
- Search Preferences lets you select how your search results are displayed including length of description and number of titles per result page.

Search Options

You can choose from several different criteria to locate an eBook. Depending on the type of search, some of these options may be unavailable.

- The Keyword option searches for your terms in the title, author, Library of Congress

Advanced search

new models of digital communication

EPIC facilitates ongoing discussions among faculty and students in many academic fields regarding their needs for new ventures in digital publishing. These collaborative efforts have resulted in the development of innovative online publications currently at various stages of production, including two award-winning projects, Columbia International Affairs Online (CIAO), and Columbia Earthscape.

Columbia International Affairs Online

Launched in fall 1997 and funded by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, Columbia International Affairs Online (CIAO) includes a mix of scholarly materials in the field of international affairs, including working papers, conference proceedings, journal abstracts, books, maps, links to a wide variety of related sites, and a sophisticated indexing and search system that allows scholars and students to use the publication in a number of different ways.

The project is now self-sustaining through subscription sales, after three years of development. Our experience with CIAO suggests that scholars are interested in exploring the potential of online publication and research, and that enough librarians and end-users find this material sufficiently

History E-Book Project Chart

The program is not intended simply to reward excellence in scholarship with yet another prestigious prize but rather to use prestige—the bluest of ribbons awarded by the grandest of juries with the full authority of the AHA behind it—to set a high standard for electronic publishing. By legitimizing electronic publishing, the AHA hopes to change attitudes of academics toward e-books. By making most of the new media, the program

Gutenberg-e is a prize competition for the best history dissertations in fields where the traditional monograph has now become endangered. Thanks to a generous grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, the AHA will award six prizes a year for a period of three years. Each prize will consist of a $20,000 fellowship to be used by the author for converting the dissertation into an electronic monograph of the highest quality. For the 2001 competition (the third in the series), nominations are being accepted for dissertations in the field of:

INTRODUCES THE NEW NEW THING IN eBOOK PUBLISHING . . .

PRINCETON DIGITAL BOOKS PLUS

PUP Launches an eBook Program That will be Eclectic, Elastic, & Cutting Edge

"An ebook that merely apes the print? That's not very exciting. What if we had a program where select titles invited readers to comment, debate, and discuss the issues in the book and then the author took these comments, concerns, and ideas and responded to them in a supplement to the book? And what if we provided that supplement to any

Eclipse: The Celestial Phenomenon That Changed the Course of History

Since the dawn of time, eclipses have been perceived as peculiarly portentous events. Whether interpreted as auspicious omens or as sentinels of doom, they have often evoked consternation, fear, and dread—as well as awe and wonderment. Duncan Steel expertly captures our continuing
