

Abstract

Innovation implies the opening of new ideas, methods, and techniques applied to any organization for transformation of its operations for effective consequences. This paper focuses on the trends of innovations in libraries and information centers and addresses different core facets of library innovations. Moreover, it discusses the need of innovation in libraries, the successful factors of innovation, policy instruments, technological trends and such other related issues highlighting the significance of harvesting innovation in libraries and information centres in electronic age.