Welcome to E-LIS

E-LIS is an open access archive for scientific or technical documents, published or unpublished, on Librarianship, Information Science and Technology, and related application disciplines. The archive's goal is to promote communication in LIS by the rapid dissemination of papers. Eprints for LIS has been established as a community service by RCLIS (Research in Computing, Library and Information Science) to promote open access to papers on these fields. In keeping with the objectives of the EPrints movement and the Free Online Scholarship \(FOS\) movement, we expect this service to facilitate self-archiving for LIS researchers and long-term preservation of their scholarly publications, provide world wide easy access to these publications and improve the impact of their research. Authors who wish to post papers to the Archive should first consult the Submission Policy.

By now, there are 2520 articles in our Archive.

Defining the (playing) field

- Self-archiving
- Research dissemination
- ≠ Publication (yet)
- IRs | ETDs | Subject / topic archives

Subject / topic archives

- Complement traditional publishing
- Complement institutional repositories
- Online availability of work has +’ve consequences for the impact of your research
 - Various studies confirm the above:
 - For which, see the OpCit Project’s “Effect of open access and downloads ('hits') on citation impact: a bibliography of studies”
<http://opcit.eprints.org/oacitation-biblio.html>

E-LIS facts [1]

- E-prints in Library and Information Science
- Est. late 2003
- To date (10 June 2005) has 2528 documents online (and growing)
- Maintained and managed by Team of four + one creators and a worldwide network of country-representatives (Editors)
- Used by us!
- Completely volunteer-driven

E-LIS facts [2]

- Free to use
- OAI-compliant (to enhance retrieval / visibility)
- Resides on E-Prints software
 - Familiar interface
 - Familiar functionality
 - Ease-of-use
 - Wide installed base

E-LIS usage statistics

Submitting your work: in brief

- Use is free, but need to register as user if submitting documents
 - Complete registration form
 - Receive confirmation e-mail
 - Respond to confirmation e-mail (i.e. confirm your registration)
- Once registered, sign on
- Go through submission workflow
- Country (metadata) Editor (approves / rejects / returns to author to modify) before/if submission is accepted into the archive
- Accepted submission's abstract is circulated as part of 'Weekly update' e-mail to all users registered for said e-mail
- Fame!
(Or rather: receive expressions of interest in your work, and achieve research impact)

Submitting your work to E-LIS: guidelines

- Submission policy

Registration

Registration is confirmed and validated via e-mail.

Once completed, you may sign on to E-LIS.

The screenshot shows a web browser window titled "E-LIS - Register - Microsoft Internet Explorer". The page content includes the E-LIS logo, the title "E-prints in Library and Information Science", and a navigation menu with links: home | about | search | browse | register | registered users area | help | FAQ | JITA classification schema. The main heading is "Register". Below this, there is explanatory text: "In order to access some areas of the archive, you'll need a user registration. No charge is made for registering with us or using any of our services." "This page lets you register with E-LIS. This will allow you to create a subscription and deposit items." "Your new password will need to confirm your email address by using a code which will be mailed to you." "If you have already registered but have forgotten your username or password, click here to set a new password." The registration form consists of three sections: "Your email address *" with a text input field and the instruction "This must be a valid email address."; "Select a username *" with a text input field and the instruction "A username must begin with a letter and only contain letters and numerals."; and "Select a password *" with a text input field and the instruction "A combination of uppercase and lowercase letters and numerals." A "Register" button is located at the bottom of the form. The browser's status bar shows "Done" and "Internet". The Windows taskbar at the bottom includes the start button, several application icons, and the system tray showing the time as 14:00.

'Demo User' workspace (to illustrate)

User Area Homepage - Demo, One

Welcome to the registered user area at E-LIS. Please select one of the options below.

Items in your Workspace

Begin a New Item

This will create a new item start editing it and allow you to attach files. You must deposit the item for it to be submitted to the live archive. Deposited items will not appear until they have been checked by a user with that responsibility. You should review your existing items if you can't remember if you have deposited an item or not.

These are items you are currently in the process of depositing. These will not be considered for the archive until you deposit them.

The main heading is "Completed Deposit". The text below reads: "Thank you. Your document is now held in the deposit buffer awaiting approval by an editor. Provided there are no problems it should appear in the main archive within the next few days." A link is provided: Click here to go to the user page. At the bottom, there is a footer with the text: "Send comments and questions to E-LIS Staff", "E-LIS is hosted by CILEA", and "This site is running GNU Eprints software, developed at the University of Southampton and complies with the The Open Archives Initiative Protocol for Metadata Harvesting (OAI2.0) for open archive interoperability". The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows the start button, several open applications, and the system clock displaying "14:19".

Keystroke Economy: A Study of the Time and Effort Involved in Self-Archiving.

<http://eprints.ecs.soton.ac.uk/10688/>

ABSTRACT: A common objection to self-archiving is that it is an extra task that puts an unnecessary burden on each researcher. In particular, the need to enter the extra bibliographic metadata demanded by repositories for accurate searching and identification is presumed to be a particularly onerous task. This paper describes a preliminary study on two months of submissions for a mature repository and concludes that the amount of time spent entering metadata would be as little as 40 minutes per year for a highly active researcher.
